The following has been dedicated to the order by Chaplain Joseph E. Evans:

THE THREE LINKS What means that little chain, papa, You wear upon your vest? Those little links of gold, I see You press it to your breast,

My little lad, that simple chain
Means much of life to me.
I've worn it now for fifty years,
On land and on the sea.
I wore it first in '81
Upon a coat of blue,
And often in that bloody strife
It seemed to pull me through.
Yet still my memory is sad
As I recall the day
I saw those shining little links
Upon a coat of gray.
I never knew who fired the shot
Which laid my brother low;
I only know that in my heart
Was misery and woe.
We two had sworn a solemn vow
Each other to protect,
And yet upon the battlefield
Our holy pact was wrecked.
From that dread day I took a part,
As every soldier must,
And strove to pierce my brother's heart
With every vicious thrust.
Oh, God! That men should crucity
The ones they dearly love
And ask a blessing on the deed
From the Crucified above.
Then let us pray for that blest day
When every war shall cease,
When emblems such as this I war
Shall mean a perfect peace.
One link is "Friendship," one is "Love,"
With "Truth" these are entwined.
The practice of these virtues, son,
The world will surely bind. My little lad, that simple chain Means much of life to me.
